

SEARCHING ON THE WEB

.nationalgeographic.com

[http:// dictionary.reference.com/
browse/species?
s=http:// spot.humanersearch.o rg/node](http://dictionary.reference.com/browse/species?s=http://spot.humanersearch.org/node)

http:// www.animalfactguide.c om/animal-facts/giantpandas

ECOSYSTEMS

The ecosystem that giant pandas live in are rainforests. Their ecosystem is in China. The meaning of ecosystems is interacting with organisms. Their ecosystem is all bamboo. Also it is really wet.

GIANT PANDAS

BY HANNAH

HUMAN INTERACTIONS

Giant pandas' human interactions are strong. Giant pandas are endangered so they have strong interactions. People love pandas and they want people to keep these Giant pandas alive. Giant pandas love to show off for people.

CHARACTERISTICS

Giant pandas have black and white fur. Their fur is sometimes soft but mostly it is not soft. Giant pandas have brown and black eyes. They also have black noses. Giant pandas fur sticks up sometimes. Their entire body is black and a little is white. The species is Ailuropoda melanoleuca.

Red pandas have some stuff in common.

Adaptations

Giant Pandas have two adaptations. The first one is they have really loud noises it scares the predators off. The last one is that they can climb really high in the trees to hide from their predators.

This is a map where the Giant Pandas live.

Fun Fact

Did you know that Giant Pandas eat for the day.